

Hassan Farshbaf-Shaker

Phase-field approaches to structural topology optimization

The minimum compliance problem and the compliant mechanism design problem in structural topology optimization is solved with the help of a phase field or diffuse interface approach. We rigorously derive a first-order optimality system, apply a formal asymptotic expansion technique and get the corresponding sharp interface equations. We compare the sharp interface equations with results obtained by a classical notion of shape derivatives. We finally present some numerical results.